SEPTEMBER–OCTOBER 2014

I think the phrase is "the best laid plans of mice and men". Another way of putting it is "we make plans, God laughs".

It seems sometimes that, no matter how carefully you plan things, make check lists or use post-it-notes, something goes wrong. It is why I always tell people who are getting married, when they start fretting about the details and worrying about the schedule, to relax. Because no matter how thorough you are, something is going to go wrong. The precious ring bearer and flower girl, who were wonderful at rehearsal, will get into a fight coming down the isle. Or the cake will be vanilla instead of chocolate. Stuff happens. It will be what you laugh the most about when you look at the wedding pictures in five years.

Things like hurricanes. Not just one, but two.

I HATE canceling services. Previously in my career I have cancelled services for two Sundays. Once was when we had two feet of snow on the ground and the blizzard was still going. The other was when we had one quarter of glazed ice everywhere. And believe me, I will take two feet of snow to one quarter of ice any day.

So, when Peter and I put our heads together to decide what to do, it looked pretty bad. It looked like we were going to get a direct hit from the eye of one hurricane and a close passing from the other. And so, based upon the information we had, we canceled the weekend activities and set out a broadcast to that effect.

As Hurricane Iselle passed, it became clear that Hurricane Julio was going to pass far to the north, and so we went ahead and held the Sunday services minus the baptisms.

We apologize for any confusion that all of this might have caused anyone.

Sometimes we wish we could see into the future with absolute certainty. But thanks be to God, we can't. God only knows what we might do with that information. God shines a flashlight on our next footstep and we have to trust in God that is enough.

I will probably not be amongst you when another hurricane passes this close to the islands. I will pray for the decision makers when that happens. In fact. When and after the plans have been made, the best thing any of us can do …. is pray.

Peace in Christ,

Fr. Rich

Good Shepherd Episcopal Church Women in Ministry
5th Annual Outreach Program

Another school year has begun and for many of our island keiki (children) school supplies were not within their reach simply because many families could not afford to buy them. This is where the women of Good Shepherd get into action to lend a helping hand and have done so for the past 5 years. We have a rummage sale yearly and host the Wailuku First Friday food booth a few months per year. Proceeds from these fundraising events go towards the purchase of core school supplies for Kindergarten through 12th grade students.

Each year we receive a generous donation of bags to put the supplies in from the Marrs 'Ohana of Marmac Ace Hardware stores on Maui. We also receive a donation of school supplies from the Queen Emma Athletic Club sponsored by the Good Shepherd Church. And for the past 2 years, we have received very generous monetary contributions from the Slammed Society Car Truck Club that have hosted a "Back to School Cruise" from Kahului to Wailea with as many as 70 to 75 cars participating with each making a donation to partner with the women and our back to school supply drive for the less fortunate keiki of Maui. Not only have they given us monetary funds to purchase supplies, they also donated large boxes of school supplies as well.

On the last two weeks of July, the women handed out 25 bags to upcountry Maui keiki (with the help of St. Joseph's Catholic Church), supplies for 15 Head Start preschool keiki and to the Boys & Girls Club of Kahekili Terrace low income housing of which both are in Wailuku, Maui.

It has been a very rewarding experience to see such great smiles when handing a bag over to a child that is eager and ready to go back to school. Also feeling very blessed when mom's and grandma's have tears in their eyes because God answered their prayers.

This is what we are called to do….become disciples of Christ, spread the Good News and bring aid to those that are less fortunate. Mahalo to all for another successful outreach program.

Stewardship University

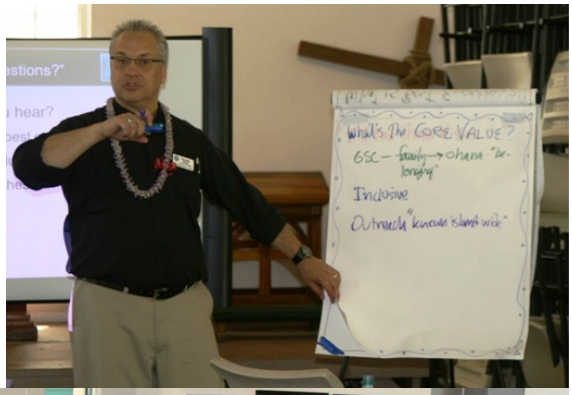
Good Shepherd Church – Wailuku



With much appreciation to the Diocese of Hawai'i Stewardship Committee, nineteen (19) folks were enlightened by The Rev'd Canon Timothy Dombek from the Diocese of Arizona who presented a Stewardship University workshop on Maui. All four Maui Episcopal Churches were represented along with Rev. Moki Hino from Holy Apostles, Hilo and Wayne Yoshigai from St. Mark's, Kapahulu. It was wonderful to have five clergy members amongst the class.

It was a full day of learning from 830am to 330pm. There were four modules presented:

- How to Talk About Money
- Relational Stewardship
- Year-round Stewardship That You Can Do!
- Enhancing Your Hospitality!

In each module we learned concept, goals and objectives. We were given many book titles to use as resources and were also given many sample templates to use in our own stewardship campaigns. All left the workshop that afternoon feeling enlightened and filled with renewed hope to strengthen their giving of time, talent and treasures.

Respectfully submitted by Louise Aloy,

HOME FOR A VISIT

On August 3rd, Ernesto Pasalo Jr. "Jar", Good Shepherd Church's own "home boy" and a seminarian at Virginia Theological Seminary, blessed us by preaching at the Sunday's worship service. Jar will be graduating from seminary in May 2015.

YASC—Sean Brown

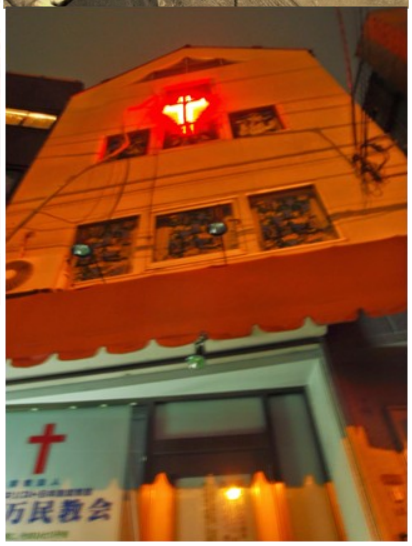
Transplanting rice by hand is now a lost Japanese tradition. Where now most farming is done by machine and the Japanese cow is referred to as a tractor. ARI holds on to this tradition and a way to help build community. This practice of planting rice by hand is the way all participants do in their home countries. Inspired by witness of many cultures as one and to understand the one important thing we all share. Food.

Wheat: watched the wheat grow from seed, stomped repeatedly by foot on each row in winter to allow the wheat to grow stronger and thicker to produce a higher yield, fed it bio gas in spring when leaves became yellow lacking nitrogen and tended to the weeds day after day, and in summer it will turn brown and will be time to pull it from the ground. reaping the harvest. Inspired by these people everyday.



Brody and Jacob: Cousin and child hood friend came out to visit Tokyo.

Tokyo, suits and ties, smart phones, high heels. Sardined in the middle of the busyness of underground traffic. Lost in the order of the machine. But to simply ask, will surely stop to show you the way. Japanese kindness shown to a foreigner is beyond hospitable.

I found a small chapel while walking through Tokyo. needed a breather from the city and found a blessing.

Altar Guild Training

Setting the table for a nice dinner, to which you have invited special guests, is an important task all of us have probably had to do, at one time or another. We are always "special guests" at the Table of the Lord. The Altar Guild in a parish, are the "table setters". Just like our own tables at home, knowing where the knives, spoons and forks go and how they are laid out, the Table of the Lord has the same rules for everything that is laid on it; when, where, how. We are having an "Altar Guild Training" on Saturday, Sept. 6th, 10:30am, in the Sanctuary and around the Table of the Lord, ie. The Holy Table, The Altar. Please come and we will even answer the "why" and the "how".

FIVE PRINCIPLES OF CHRISTIAN GIVING

Stewardship is about more than giving 10% of our income (a tithe) to God: it is about giving 100% of ourselves to God. Christian stewardship arises out of God's incredible saving love shown to us in Jesus Christ. Confronted with such love, the appropriate response is generosity, both with our financial wealth and the way we steward the gifts God has given us, including the natural world. The Psalmist's question in the 116th psalm is most relevant. "What shall I give the Lord for all his benefits towards me?"

The use of our money reflects our values and choices. Our use of it declares to the world who we are and what we value. It is a symbol of the work we have done and represents what we have accomplished. The question in the end, though, always remains—it is the question that God asks—"How did you use it?"

Here are the five principles of Christian giving. None of these are anything new or original but they are principles found helpful in providing a guide to being faithful followers of Christ:

Continue: Stewardship

The First Principle is to give oneself to God as a glad response to God's redeeming love for us in Christ. God loves a cheerful giver, and we are to give voluntarily, as St. Paul reminds us (2 Cor. 8:3).

The Second Principle is not "Give—it will make you a better person," or "Give that you may prosper," or "Give until it hurts." Rather, it is "Give until it feels good." You'll know when you've reached that point.

The Third Principle is that giving involves sacrifice. Do something for God that makes you do a trade-off in your life.

The Fourth Principle is setting aside that portion you give to God first. Treat it just like the mortgage and the car payment. A haphazard giving program usually indicates haphazard commitment.

The Fifth Principle is to use the tithe (10% of your income) as your standard for giving. You may not be there, but we can all make it our goal to move in that direction. And we must remember that, even though we talk about the tithe and use it as a standard, tithing is not ultimately what it's all about.

What it's all about is a "Tithing life" (a term used by Norma Wimberly Gaskil in Paying a Tithe or Living a Tithe Life, General Board of Discipleship, UMC, 3/89).

A tithing life is one that is open, accepting, giving and non-anxious. The difference is that to strive to just be a tither is a legalistic burden, but to live a tithing life is a spiritual blessing and liberating.

The Search Committee met with the Bishop and we were given 5 resumes to review. From the 5 resumes, we will decide if anyone fit the 10 characteristics that we desire in our future rector. The 10 characteristics are in the Parish Profile. The Bishop is actively recruiting for more applicants. The Search Committee will decide whether any of the 5 applicants will be interviewed or not when the Search Committee meets in August. Thank you for your continued prayers and patience.
